DORCHEAT HISTORICAL MUSEUM

Brown and Treat families to headline Night at the Museum

The 55th Night at the Museum will be Monday, Oct. 12, at the Dorcheat Historical Association Museum.

Museum doors open at 5:30 p.m. with first-come, first-serve seating. The program begins at 6 p.m. Admission is free with potluck desserts and snacks welcome.

Headlining the event will be several long-time Minden residents Louise Baird Snook, Lucy Dickinson Adkins and Margaret Baird Evans. The program will focus on the Brown and Treat families and their impact on Minden.

William Joseph Brown, the great-grandfather of the speakers for the evening, moved to Minden in 1902 from Arkansas with two of his children, Hubert and Helen. Helen would become the grandmother of these three women who will tell their family story. W.J. Brown ran Hicks Co. Wholesalers and purchased the home on Oak Street, near Academy Park.

Today, that house is being restored by the sixth generation of family members.

COURT WATCH

Charges dismissed against former Fannette's employee

michelle@press-herald.com

Charges against a Minden woman accused of stealing from her employer were dropped in court last week.

According to court minutes, Sandy Finley, charged with theft of goods under $500, paid all costs, and the charge was dismissed by 26th Judicial District Judge Michael O. Craig.

Assistant district attorney Marcus Patillo says normally in a case such as this, the defendant pays restitution, which satisfies the court order by making restitution and paying all court costs.

"Normally, the person they took the property from, they make restitution," Patillo said.

Finley, 35, was arrested by Minden police in April on a warrant for felony theft. Det. Keith King, arresting officer, said in April the warrant was issued after she was accused of stealing approximately $1,100 worth of merchandise from Fannette's Flowers and Gifts while working there.

Some of the items she reportedly took from her employer included kitchen and household items. Whitney Floyd, owner, said at the time of Finley's arrest, some of the items were recovered, but some ongoing issues led to the discovery of the missing items and her termination of employment.

Webster Parish registrar of voters Melanie Smith says presidential elections tend to have a higher turnout than that of other elections, such as gubernatorial races.

In 2012 in Webster Parish, the presidential election showed a 70.71 percent voter turnout, she said. In 2008, the number was much the same with a 70.03 percent turnout. In 2004, the number came in around 68.1 percent.

The gubernatorial turnout in the 2003 election was 52.3 percent, in 2007, it was 47.10 percent, and in 2011, statistics show voter turnout at 36.67 percent in Webster Parish.

For the Oct. 24 election, Smith says there are 25,181 registered voters, with the parish population right at 41,207, according to the 2010 census.

"All of our population is not eligible to register to vote because they are underage or for other reasons," she said, "but that's a pretty good registration rate."

"Louisiana has one of the highest voter registration statistics in the nation, with close to 85 percent of our eligible voters registered, but our participation on election days is much lower," Schedler said. "Making voting quick and easy is one way we have attempted to combat voter apathy and fatigue. Ultimately, voting requires personal responsibility, but the Secretary of State and other local election officials can certainly attempt to assist voters with easy access to information that makes the voting process that much easier for citizens living busy lives like we all do."

The secretary of state's office offers easy ways for voters to register and to vote. Voters can download an app to their smartphone that will allow them to see what's on the ballot and get real-time election results the night of the election.

Schedler also emphasizes early voting as another easy way to cast a ballot.

the dining room table, a package containing suspected methamphetamine was seen in plain view.

Officer Fannie Rankin was called to the scene to search Thompson's person, and upon that search, a foil package containing suspected methamphetamine was found in her front pants pocket.

A search warrant was obtained, and during a subsequent search of the home, a hypodermic needle was located in a backpack in the dining room.

Thompson was placed under arrest on the above charges and transported to Bayou Dorcheat Correctional Center for booking.

The weapons in question were not found inside the residence, agents said.

Cancer foundation hosting Pink Pearl Tea Saturday

In recognition of national Breast Cancer Awareness month, Anna Pink Ribbon Cancer Foundation, L3C, will host three events in addition to the two already held this month.

Upcoming events include a Pink Pearl Tea at Orleans on Main, Saturday, Oct. 10, and on Saturday, Oct. 17, along with More Than Conquerors Breast Support Group, a pageant for breast cancer survivors will be hosted. The beauty and breast pageant will be at the American Legion Hall in Minden. Also, at Pink Pratique, Friday, Oct. 23, information will be shared to raise awareness of breast health programs available in our community and to schedule breast cancer screening and diagnostic appointments.

At noon Saturday, at the Pink Pearl Tea, this will be an ideal opportunity for breast cancer survivors in the community to come together and share their stories. Each survivor is encouraged to bring a guest. Breast cancer survivors and guests will be treated to an elegant tea with an appetizing menu.

Special tokens will be given to each survivor in attendance.

The guest speaker for the tea will be Rexie Thomas, with the More than Conquerors Breast Cancer Support Group. Also, Kelly Matkins, mission coordinator with Susan G. Komen Northwest Louisiana, will be in attendance.

Local vocalists will provide entertainment.

A silent auction will take place during the tea. Several items in the auction have been donated by local business owners including Pink Pratique, Gray's Jewelry and Inside-Out Beauty Center.

The event is open to the public. To ensure priority seating, breast cancer survivors should call 318-639-5035 by 5 p.m. Oct. 9.

There is no admission to attend; however, donations will be accepted.

The Anna Pink Ribbon Cancer Foundation began its work in the Minden community this year. The mission of the foundation is to empower our community, raise awareness and help those affected by breast cancer through education, outreach and support services.

A new breast cancer support group will begin meeting in Minden soon. The date, time and location of the first meeting will be announced at the tea.

The foundation already hosted a fashion show at the Minden Civic Center Sept. 26, and on Oct. 3, the foundation hosted its first Anna Pink Ribbon Cuncer Foundation 5K Run/Walk.

Become a part of the breast cancer awareness events by attending one or making a donation to the foundation, Anna Pink Ribbon Cancer Foundation, L3C, 731 Main Street, Minden, La. 71055.

EDITORIAL ROUND UP

The Times-Picayune on why Bobby Jindal should cut his losses on Common Core

Despite rulings against him in state and federal court, Gov. Bobby Jindal still has his lawyers fighting Common Core. He doesn't mind throwing more money at a losing battle — and, no wonder. It's not his money he's wasting. It's ours. And it is no small amount. So far, Gov. Jindal has spent $830,000 of taxpayers' money on his failed effort to put an end to Common Core academic standards. That was before the decision to appeal the September federal court ruling against him, so the bill will almost certainly rise.

Jimmy Faircloth, the governor's former executive counsel, has been the biggest beneficiary. He's gotten $600,000 for his work so far on the Common Core cases in state and federal court. Gov. Jindal is appealing both losses.

Two other law firms worked for the governor on the Common Core lawsuit filed in state court. The Long Law Firm in Baton Rouge was paid $200,000 and John Murphy, of Morain & Murphy in Baton Rouge, was paid $30,000, according to legal contracts.

The costs ballooned over the past year. The Jindal administration initially contracted to pay Mr. Faircloth $50,000 to handle the governor's federal lawsuit against Common Core. That was in August 2014. This summer, the contract was revised to $475,000.

Mr. Faircloth blamed the increase in cost on the need to hire experts and do out-of-state depositions. "The experts in that case ... cost $70,000 that my firm advanced," he said. There also were depositions in Washington and Chicago, he said.

Those must have been pricey depositions to increase the legal costs almost tenfold.

Asked whether the appeals would push the legal costs higher, Mr. Faircloth said: "I really don't know. I hope not."

He hopes not? Is he going to do the work pro bono? That would be a switch.

The Associated Press reported in 2013 that Mr. Faircloth's law firm already had gotten $1.1 million in no-bid legal contract work from the Jindal administration. That included defending the governor's voucher program, which was found unconstitutional. His firm also worked on the state's litigation against BP.

The lawsuit against BP was filed to protect the public's interests. The Common Core lawsuits are just another way for Gov. Jindal to court conservative presidential primary voters in other states.

Spending $830,000 in public money on political vanity is obscene — particularly given Louisiana's current budget woes.

Gov. Jindal long ago stopped being interested in the good of the state. Once he focused on the presidency, Louisiana was just a prop for his campaign. And the state is suffering from the lack of leadership.

The next governor and Legislature, who will be chosen in the coming weeks, are facing an estimated $100 million deficit from last year's budget. In addition, there is a $300 million shortfall in the Medicaid program and a $19 million gap in the TOPS college scholarship budget.

Colleges and universities are bracing for more cuts. It is unclear where the savings will be found since they have already absorbed a 34 percent cut in state revenue over the past seven years. No other state has cut higher education as much.

Gov. Jindal should be ashamed of that record. He should also be ashamed of spending $830,000 on these lawsuits.

Common Core isn't going to be taken down by him. U.S. District Judge Shelly Dick discounted every argument he made. Common Core, which grew out of the National Governors Association, isn't a federal program and doesn't infringe on the state's power to decide what children are taught, she said.

He also lost a lawsuit against Common Core in state court last year. Baton Rouge District Judge Todd Hernandez ruled Aug. 19, 2014, in state court that the governor's executive order forbidding Louisiana's Department of Education to buy new student tests was improper and harmful to families and schools. His ruling freed the Department of Education to purchase the new tests.

The Legislature came up with a compromise to try to end the fight. Educators from across the state are serving on committees to review Common Core math and English standards and recommend any changes needed. More than 30,000 Louisianians had offered their opinions as of mid-August.

The next governor will be the one to judge their work.

Gov. Jindal is just pretending he has a role in the future of Common Core at this point. And he needs to stop wasting state money in the process.

EDITORIAL ROUND UP

The Houma Courier on how Speaker Boehner's resignation could help regions in Louisiana

When Speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives John Boehner made the surprise announcement that he was retiring from Congress, it left room for other Republicans to move up.

U.S. Rep. Kevin McCarthy, R-Calif., who is now the House majority leader, is expected to move up to take Boehner's place.

That move would create an opening in the House's No. 2 position, and opening that Steve Scalise could be in line to take.

Scalise, who represents the southern portions of Terrebonne and Lafourche parishes, as well as much of south Louisiana, has secured the support of several other Louisiana Republicans.

As majority whip, the third-ranking Republican in the House, Scalise has been in charge of securing party consensus on important issues.

Moving up in the party hierarchy could be important for our region, provided the Republicans retain control of the U.S. House after next year's elections.

In any event, though, having our local congressman so close to the seat of power is bound to have its advantages.

Wielding power in Congress can mean the difference between getting or not getting a crucial hearing on a bill of great local importance.

It could go a long way toward getting much-needed attention to and investment in Louisiana's coastal challenges.

"I understand from experience that unity is easy to call for, but it takes the right kind of leadership to achieve," Scalise said in a letter to fellow Republicans announcing his candidacy for majority leader. "Whenever you've called on me, I've delivered. Together, we've confronted many challenging issues, and each time I've worked to bring all parts of our conference together to pass legislation that reflects our values and moves our country forward."

That is the sort of tone each party's leadership needs to take.

To get things done at the federal level, the parties have to marshal their political power and make sure each member is working toward a common goal.

Ideally, that goal would be driven by national priorities rather than party allegiance, but the fact is that party plays a huge part in the current workings of Washington.

Scalise's move up the political ladder is not guaranteed.

He has several competitors for the job, including Budget Chairman Tom Price, R-Ga., who has picked up some high-profile endorsements. But Scalise remains the frontrunner in a contest that should be decided in a private vote on Thursday.

Louisiana now has just six members of the U.S. House and two members of the Senate. Its small congressional delegation has some huge responsibilities. Making up in clout what we lack in numbers could be one way to increase the local area's chances of getting what we need from the federal government.

PERSPECTIVE

Gunning for the truth

Something about the gun debate brings out the worst in politicians. On both sides.

Last week, President Obama, exuding his usual certainty, put forth this definitive declaration: "We know that states with the most gun laws tend to have the fewest gun deaths."

No, Mr. President we do not know that at all. Some states with almost no gun restrictions, places like New Hampshire and Utah, have very few gun murders. Meanwhile, Maryland and the District of Columbia, with ultra-tough gun laws, are killing fields.

The same is true with nations as a whole. In Switzerland, where guns are plentiful, killings are rare. There is essentially no correlation between gun laws and violence. Statisticians have tried mightily to find correlation and causation, but simply can not.

Of course, there is one undeniable correlation: Demanding 'common sense' gun legislation leads directly to a corresponding increase in self-righteousness. Or is it the other way around?

BILL O'REILLY

Anyway, there are also fibs on the pro-gun side, where 'gun nuts' contend that more weaponry leads directly to less crime. They overlook states like Louisiana and Mississippi, which have few gun laws but an abundance of gun murders.

Politicians try to pettifog this issue with all sorts of mumbo-jumbo about 'gun show loopholes' and 'automatic weapons' and 'universal background checks.' The result, perhaps the intent, is not to enlighten, but to confuse.

But while advocates and fanatics deceptively trot out their favorite stats, there is a simple truth that every clear-thinking person acknowledges. It was expressed pithily last week by former New York City Mayor Rudy Giuliani: 'People who are insane and want to go ahead and murder don't follow the gun control laws.'

No amount of legislation is going to prevent a determined madman from killing. Not in Colorado, not in Connecticut, not in South Carolina, not in Oregon. And, for that matter, not in Scandinavia, either.

Would-be gun controllers prefer to forget about the subhuman cretin who slaughtered 77 people, most of them children, in that gun-free zone known as Sweden. That's more than the death toll at Aurora, Newtown, Charleston, and Roseburg. Combined.

But politicians, especially in the wake of a tragedy, just can't help themselves. Hillary Clinton made this claim a few days ago: 'The gun industry and gun sellers are the only business in America that is totally free of liability for their behavior.'

Absolutely false! Gun makers can be sued if their product is defective and malfunctions. But Clinton and some others on the left want gun companies to be held responsible for the actions of a person using a gun, even if that gun works precisely as intended.

It is true that Congress has granted gun makers some protection from lawsuits, precisely so that cities and states can not bankrupt companies that manufacture firearms.

And interestingly enough, when gun manufacturers pushed for that protection against frivolous lawsuits, Bernie Sanders voted with the NRA. The Democratic presidential candidate also voted against the Brady Bill, arguing that the feds shouldn't impose mandatory waiting periods for gun purchases. Sanders even voted for a law allowing Amtrak passengers to transport weapons. Bernie's adoring fans on the left, if and when they find out about their guy's mixed record on gun control, may be in for a surprise.

In one sense, the Senator from Vermont is one of the more honest politicians in this entire debate. He favors stricter background checks and more emphasis on mental health issues, both of which are eminently sensible positions.

Bernie Sanders may be a socialist living in an economic dream world, but he is entirely realistic when it comes to gun control, saying this: 'Some people think it's going to solve all of our problems, and it's not.' He may want to have a word with his friends on the left who have demagogued this issue for decades.

Better tracking and record keeping are good things; they may help at the margins. Convicts and the insane should not be allowed to buy or own lethal weapons. Pretty much everyone this side of Charles Bronson agrees with that.

But let's also agree that no proposed legislation would have stopped the killings in Oregon. If a nut wants a gun, he'll find a way to get one. Rudy Giuliani understands that. Bernie Sanders also understands it. Why can't so many other pinheads grasp this one very simple fact: Laws cannot stop madness.

SNEED'S BIG NIGHT NOT ENOUGH AS MINDEN FALLS, 41-34

BLAKE BRANCH
blake@press-herald.com

Rodtravion Rogers fights for yardage in Minden's 41-34 loss to Benton Thursday night. Blake Branch/Press-Herald

BENTON - In the moments right before Minden's final pass fell short to end an outstanding game, L'Jarius Sneed layed exhausted on the field in cramps.

The senior do-everything athlete put on a dazzling display of aerial abilities, speed, strength and determination in willing his team back from a 27-13 halftime deficit, but following an improbable kickoff return that set the Crimson Tide up with a reasonable look at the end zone, Sneed had nothing left in the tank, and neither did Minden, as they fell to Benton 41-34 in what might go down as the game of the year. "It was probably the single best individual game for a receiver that I've ever seen," Minden head coach Spencer Heard said. "It was ridiculous what he did tonight. I can't see how big schools across the country are not knocking our door down trying to get him. Everybody played well, but his effort was over the top."

Minden struggled early in the game, despite getting on the board first with a 49-yard touchdown pass from Antonio Rivette to Sneed.

Benton quickly answered with a pair of touchdowns to make it 13-6, and extended that lead to 20-6 early in the second quarter.

Right before the half, it appeared Minden would go to the break only down seven following a beautiful 37-yard touchdown pass from Rivette to Tavarius Edwards. However, the Tide allowed Benton to pick them apart on their way to a 60-yard scoring drive that took just 35 seconds.

Trailing 27-13 the Tide started their comeback with a 25-yard touchdown pass from Rivette to Sneed. The score remained at 27-20 until the 5:34 mark of the fourth quarter. Rivette dropped back to pass and delivered a dime deep downfield that was hauled in by Sneed who shed two Benton tacklers and fell into the end zone for the 78-yard touchdown to tie the game at 27-27.

On the ensuing Benton possession, Minden shot themselves in the foot with back-to-back penalties that set Benton up at the Minden 25-yard line where the Tigers scored on the next play to make it 34-27.

Minden wasn't done though, as the dynamic duo of Rivette and Sneed once again locked eyes on a deep route. Sneed was able to make a twisting grab and break free once again for a wild touchdown run after the catch. The capacity crowd was in a frenzy as Sneed crossed the goal line and tied the game.

On Benton's next possession, Minden forced a punt that gave the Crimson Tide the ball back at their own 20 yard line with one minute to play. Rather than play it safe and head for overtime, the Tide tried to seal the win with a score, but as Rivette dropped back to pass on third down he was hit and fumbled. Benton scooped up the loose ball and went into the end zone for the winning touchdown with just 26 seconds on the clock.

"We could have taken it to overtime," Heard said. "Benton had three timeouts and I was scared if we tried to run out the clock they'd just take their timeouts and get the ball back. I told Tony (Rivette) I was very proud of him. He had the best game he's had since I've been at Minden High School. He's got nothing to hang his head about."

Sneed had one last attempt at making something magical happen, and he nearly did, but his wild kick return came up just short, as an exhausted No. 5 couldn't outrun the last Tiger between he and the end zone. Minden's final heave fell incomplete, and time expired on the Tide.

"We fought to the very end," Heard said. "We just came out on the short end of the stick this time. We have to get over the hurt this weekend and get ready for the next opponent. You can always second guess yourself as a player or coach, but I know these guys played their hearts out."

Rivette set a school record for passing yards with 417 yards and five touchdowns through the air, while Sneed broke a single game record for receiving yards with eight catches for 278 yards and four touchdowns. Tavarius Edwards finished with six catches for 90 yards and a touchdown, followed by Kelcey Miller with two catches for 39 yards. D.J. Elkins led the Tide in rushing with 38 yards and Sneed pitched in 27 yards on the ground for good measure.

A special thanks to Mark Chreene at KASO Radio for statistics. KASO will re-air Thursday's game Saturday morning at 8.

Apaches hoping for first win on homecoming

BLAKE BRANCH
blake@press-herald.com

The Glenbrook Apaches have enjoyed a spirited week ahead of Friday's homecoming game against the Union Christian Academy Lions.

Homecoming arrives right on time for a team that suffered a crushing loss last week to their rivals from Claiborne Academy. The Apaches led late before the Rebels drove the field for the winning score with 25 seconds left on the clock.

But head coach Caleb Carmikle said he hasn't seen a hangover effect.

"After a tough loss like last Friday night a lot of teams come out and are down on themselves," Carmikle said. "These kids haven't done that. They realize just how close we are to being a pretty good football team and I think last week motivated them. We've had a great week of practice."

The Apaches took a big step forward against the Rebels, putting up 25 points.

"You can definitely see more confidence among the skill guys," Carmikle said. "The kids have rallied around Seth. He's starting to understand the full scheme of the offense and is starting to take on a leadership role. Every day this week after practice he gets his receivers together and they're working on timing. It's refreshing to see."

Carmikle said the team across the sideline Friday night will be no pushover, despite the fact that homecoming opponents normally aren't the strongest.

"They're the most naturally athletic team in our conference," Carmikle said. "They have some good looking kids at the skill positions. Up front is probably their biggest weakness and we feel like that's an area where we can attack. But they're no slouch. It's going to take a great effort on both sides of the football for us to come out on top."

Each game at this point serves as a learning experience for a young team with a first year head coach. Carmikle said this season has been a more of a challenge than he could have imagined.

"Things haven't gone in our favor as much as I hoped they would," Carmikle said. "There's been a learning curve for everyone involved in the program, and I think we've all grown quite a bit and you can see how close we are. Hopefully it all comes together this week and we get that first win."

The Apaches will take the field in front of a large, homecoming crowd with kickoff set for 7 p.m.

CROSS COUNTRY

Lander, Greene claim wins

Special to the Press-Herald

The Cedar Creek Cross-Country meet brought together 14 of the best teams in North Louisiana. Even though having to run a 3.4 mile course, Alissa Lander and Eric Greene proved once again to the cream of the crop.

Lander lead the 112 other female runners running a 19:55 to claim the championship and lead her team to a second place spot behind Cedar Creek. Zachary Kerrigan and Alaina Stiles, running their first competitive three-plus mile run, took seventh and 15th running a 23:29 and 24:15 respectively. Taynia Joiner took 33rd at 25:27. Placing 34th was Angelina Futch at 25:29. Kaylee Davis was right behind finishing 36th at 25:30. Egypt Anderson took 59th at 26:43.

Eric Greene cruised to another victory running a 17:02 over the lengthy course. Placing sixth in the 150 runner field was Cody Robinson at 17:16. Freshman Tyler Davis was 15th at 18:32. Seventh Grader Austin Nunn took 128th at 25:09.

Former Lakeside star Enrique Soto had an excellent performance at the McNeese Cowboy Stampede. Soto ran a 20:30.44 over the four mile course, which was good enough for fifth in the 50 man field. Soto was only eight seconds behind the winning time of 20:22 by teammate Enock Bor. Their efforts lead McNeese to the team championship.

NATIONAL FOOTBALL LEAGUE

Colts top Texans, 27-20

HOUSTON — Matt Hasselbeck and Andre Johnson showed Thursday night that sometimes old guys can shine in what is certainly a young man's league.

The 34-year-old Johnson caught two touchdown passes from the 40-year-old Hasselbeck, the second for 2 yards in the fourth quarter, to help the Indianapolis Colts beat the Houston Texans 27-20.

"You get over the age of 30 they kind of count you out," Johnson said. "But we proved to people that we could still play."

Released by Houston in March after 12 seasons with the team, Johnson had six catches for 77 yards.

The Colts (3-2) extended their AFC South winning streak to an NFL-record 16 games.

Hasselbeck was filling in for Andrew Luck, who missed his second straight game with a shoulder injury.

Hasselbeck's performance was even more impressive given the fact that he was battling a bacterial infection that hospitalized him this week. He started feeling ill just before halftime

Sunday in a victory over Jacksonville and didn't start feeling better until Thursday night.

"I honestly feel like this isn't even real right now," Hasselbeck said.

Johnson extended the lead to 27-17 with the 2-yard reception with about 10 1/2 minutes left. The Texans intercepted Hasselbeck's pass in the end zone earlier in that drive, but the play was negated because of defensive holding on Eddie Pleasant. A second penalty, this one for pass interference gave the Colts a first down at the 1.

ONLINE TELEVISION

Netflix raising plan price by $1

MICHAEL LIEDTKE
AP Technology Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — Netflix is raising the price of its Internet video service by $1 for new customers in the U.S., Canada and some Latin America countries to help cover its escalating costs for shows such as "House of Cards" and other original programming.

Amazon.com, HBO and other services for the rights to TV series and movies that will expand its audience. Netflix's 42 million existing U.S. subscribers are being insulated from the price bump. That's a move CEO Reed Hastings is taking in an effort to avoid a repeat of the customer backlash that stung the company four years ago when it raised rates by as much as 60 percent for subscribers who wanted Internet video and DVD-by-mail rentals.

The abrupt price increase in 2011 triggered an exodus that cost Netflix more than 800,000 subscribers and caused its stock to lose 80 percent of its value in a tumultuous 13-month period. The experience taught Netflix to reward its existing subscribers as higher prices are phased in on new customers. Subscribers who have been with Netflix since May 2014 will still pay $8 per month under a two-year rate freeze adopted when the company last raised its U.S. prices by $1. Customers who signed up since the last price increase will pay $9 per month until October 2016.

Netflix Inc.'s programming costs are expected to rise from $3 billion this year to $5 billion next year. The research firm Ampere Analysis predicts Netflix will be paying $6 billion annually for its line-up by 2018. Some of that money is being spent on previously released TV series and movies, but Netflix is pouring more money for shows that can only be found on its service — a formula that has been highly successful for HBO's pay-TV channel. The strategy has paid off for Netflix too as its U.S. customer base has swelled by about 70 percent from 25 million subscribers since the 2013 debut of "House of Cards," the service's first major splash in original programming. Netflix now features dozens of exclusive programs. Netflix's higher price might help Amazon's rival Internet video service, which is sold with a bundle of other features that includes free shipping from Amazon's online store for $99 annually, or $8.25 per month.

Some analysts, though, view Netflix's biggest competition as HBO, which sells an Internet-only version of its channel for $15 per month. HBO's price may give Netflix leeway to raise its prices even further, according to Per Sjöfors, CEO of consulting firm Atenga. His analysis of customer sentiment concluded Netflix could charge as much as $13 per month for its standard Internet plan without hurting its growth. Netflix's standard plan allows subscribers to stream video on as many as two different devices simultaneously and watch programs in high definition. A basic plan available to new customers for $8 per month limits watching to just one screen, with no high-definition option.

Pop star Selena Gomez has gotten chemotherapy to treat lupus

NEW YORK — Selena Gomez has revealed that she's battling the debilitating immune system disorder lupus.

"I was diagnosed with lupus, and I've been through chemotherapy," the 23-year-old singer told Billboard magazine in an interview published Thursday. Gomez acted in "Wizards of Waverly Place" before becoming a pop star. She says she was treated in late 2013 and early 2014 after she canceled the Asian and Australian legs of her Stars Dance tour.

Lupus causes fibrous tissue and inflammation of internal organs, skin rashes and joint pain. It affects women nine times more than men. Organs affected by lupus include the kidneys, heart and lungs.

Gomez's song hits include "Come & Get It" and "Hit the Lights." She has also appeared in the films "Rudderless" and "Spring Breakers."
