Juvenile pedestrian killed in single-vehicle Bienville Parish crash

Ringgold - On Saturday, February 24, 2024, shortly after 11:30 a.m., Troopers from Louisiana State Police Troop G began investigating a single-vehicle fatality crash involving a pedestrian in the 1300 block of School Street. This crash claimed the life of 7-year-old Kai-den Coke of Ringgold.

The preliminary investigation revealed that a 2011 Dodge Ram was backed into a parking space in a private parking lot and occupied by a driver. At the same time, Coke, who was playing with a ball, was inside the same private parking lot. For reasons still under investigation, Coke lost his ball, which rolled under the Ram. As Coke went to retrieve the ball, the driver, who was unaware that Coke had crawled under the Ram, pulled out of the parking space. As a result, Coke was struck by the Ram. Coke was pronounced deceased at the scene by the Bienville Parish Coroner's Office. The driver of the Dodge was not injured. Although impairment is not suspected, routine toxicology samples were collected and will be submitted for analysis. This crash remains under investigation.

As our Troopers work to ensure the safety of our roadways, investigating fatal crashes remains a top priority. Dealing with the aftermath of a fatal crash is always challenging, particularly when children are involved. While each crash is unique, there are essential safety measures that can greatly reduce the risk of tragic crashes as we head into warmer weather.

It is crucial to educate children on the importance of never playing near or around cars and trucks. Always make it a habit to walk around your vehicle and thoroughly check the surrounding area before reversing. Avoid solely relying on detection devices, as they may not always be foolproof.

Encourage your children to stand to the side of the driveway or sidewalk so they are clearly visible to you when backing out. Furthermore, when driving through residential areas, it is imperative to be extra cautious and attentive. Keep a watchful eye out for children, reduce your speed, and remain vigilant at all times. By following these safety tips, we can all play a role in preventing tragic crashes and keeping our communities safe.

In 2024, Troop G has investigated four fatal crashes, resulting in five deaths.

Three arrested for role in church fire insurance fraud scheme

AMBER MCDOWN
Minden Press-Herald

Three Mississippi residents have been arrested for their involvement in an insurance fraud scheme related to a fire at an abandoned church.

Cynthia Pearson, 66, and Ricky Pearson, 65, both from Jackson, Mississippi, were arrested on Friday, February 16, 2024. Shawn Burton, 52, also from Jackson, was previously arrested in August 2023. All three were booked into the Bayou Dorcheat Correctional Center.

The church, located in the 500 block of Constable Street, had been vacant for several months and did not have working utilities. In April 2023, the Minden Fire Department responded to the blaze. Due to a number of suspicious circumstances, the Louisiana State Fire Marshal's (SFM) office was called in to investigate.

After a thorough investigation, SFM deputies, along with agents from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives (ATF), concluded that the fire was intentionally set. Shawn Burton was identified as a suspect and arrested in August. Further investigation led to the arrest of Cynthia and Ricky Pearson, who own the church.

Minden native opens scented candle company in Nashville

AMBER MCDOWN
Minden Press-Herald

Desiree Page, a Minden native, has recently launched Milton Candle Co. in Nashville, Tennessee, honoring her roots and childhood memories. The company's name pays tribute to Milton Drive, the street where Page grew up.

Page's love for candles, coupled with her nostalgia for her hometown, led her to create the scented candle line after her father, James McLaughlin, passed away. The "Minden" candle, named after her hometown, features a blend of vanilla, leather, and birch, evoking a warm and cozy atmosphere with bright high notes. "I set out to find something that made me feel at home," she said.

"I love where I grew up; I love Minden. I loved my hometown, the street where I grew up, my neighbors," expressed Page, highlighting her deep connection to her roots. She fondly recalled that her childhood address on Milton Drive was the first thing she memorized.

Despite living in Nashville with her fiancée, a songwriter, Page remains connected to Minden, returning every year. Her long-term goal is to open a shop on Main Street in Minden, aiming to share the charm of her hometown with others. "I want everyone to experience Minden, truly," she said.

Page, who also manages artists, is considering approaching local retailers to carry her line. In the meantime, her candles are available online at MiltonCandle.com.

"Minden is home to me, and it was such a special place to grow up. I want to make my hometown proud," Page concluded.

Webster Parish Libraries offer pysanky egg decorating classes

AMBER MCDOWN
Minden Press-Herald

As Easter approaches, Webster Parish Libraries are offering lessons in egg decorating using the pysanky style, a Ukrainian folk art dating back several thousand years.

Shelley Masog, library resource administrator and pysanky egg instructor explained the art's historical roots: "Historically, it was tied to pagan rituals but, with the coming of Christianity, it began to take on religious symbolism." Traditionally, it was exclusively done by women at Easter, but now many people create pysanky eggs year-round. The word "pysanky" is derived from the Ukrainian verb pysaty, which means "to write."

Masog, who has been decorating eggs in the pysanky style for about 11 years, learned the method from her uncle in Minnesota. "Ever since I was a child, I was fascinated with it. About 11 years ago we were up there on vacation, and he showed me how to do my first egg, and I've been doing them ever since," said Masog. Legend has it that as long as people wrote pysanky, evil could never take over the world. Masog laughed, "And I thought, I need to share this process, and maybe more people will start writing eggs."

The pysanky method resembles a batik method. A tool called a "kistka" is used to apply hot wax to the shell of an egg, which is then placed in a series of dye baths. The wax prevents the dye from reaching the surface of the egg; multiple layers of wax and color may be applied to build the pattern, which is then revealed when the wax is melted off at the end.

Masog will provide a traditional design for use in the class, with up to five colors used. This project will be completed by the end of the two-hour class. All supplies will be provided and, due to limited supplies, registration is required. Registration is currently open and is limited to eight people per class. These free classes will be held at three branches: Springhill on March 14 starting at 2 PM, Doyline on March 19 starting at 3:30 PM, and the Minden main branch on March 20 starting at 2 PM. Participants can register through the Webster Parish Libraries app, by contacting the branch manager, or by calling Shelley Masog at (318) 371-3080 ext. 142.

Two brothers arrested in Minden Walmart incident

STAFF REPORT
Minden Press-Herald

Matthew Welbourne, 41, and Nathaniel Welbourne, 46, both of the 5000 block of Dixie Garden Drive in Shreveport, were arrested on the morning of February 22 following an incident at the Minden Walmart that alarmed bystanders.

Minden police responded to a call regarding the Welbournes' paranoid behavior, with the two men reportedly claiming that people were after them. The officers were informed that the individuals had armed themselves with a hatchet near the pharmacy.

Upon approaching the subjects, officers noted erratic behavior and statements from both men regarding their belief that they were being pursued. The individuals were escorted out of the store to their vehicle for further questioning.

During the questioning, the Welbournes denied ingesting illegal drugs, taking medication, or consuming alcohol. In an effort to further investigate, a K9 unit was called to the scene.

K9 Tigo conducted an open-air sniff of the vehicle, alerting officers to a positive odor. Subsequent searches of the vehicle revealed several firearms, medication bottles with various pills, and a bag containing a crystal-like substance that tested positive for methamphetamine.

"Inside the passenger door pocket, officers located a black plastic bag. Inside the bag were three (3) medication bottles (2 black 1 green). Inside the two black bottles were different types of pills, four (4) were for blood pressure, and one (1) was identified as Buprenorphine and Naloxone (oral/sublingual). On the black bottles, they had the name of Nathaniel Welbourne on the printed sticker on the side of it. Inside the green bottle was a clear plastic bag with a crystal-like substance later field tested positive for Methamphetamine." the police report stated.

Matthew Welbourne was placed under arrest and read his Miranda Rights. Nathaniel Welbourne was also handcuffed and read his rights after a search of his personal belongings uncovered additional methamphetamine.

Both men are facing charges including possession of a schedule II substance, illegal carrying of weapons in the presence of a controlled dangerous substance, disturbing the peace, and possession of drug paraphernalia. Nathaniel Welbourne faces an additional charge of possession of a schedule III substance.

OPINION

Why Do Americans have a Constitutional Right to Assistance of Counsel and a Legal Defense?

I have been asked that question many times but have never addressed it in an article. The subtext of this question is usually something like this: "How do you represent people you think may actually have committed the crime?"

That's a great question and the short answer is that I never ask an individual I represent whether they committed a crime and most of them don't trust their attorney enough to admit it even if they did.

But that is a secondary point. What is important is that the presumption of innocence and other constitutional safeguards for the accused are what distinguishes our country and our Constitution from every other one in world history. It's really more about the rule of law and requiring the government to prove guilt before the awesome power of the state can be invoked to circumscribe an American citizen's freedom or even take his life, following due process.

Receiving "due process" of law means we are entitled to a presumption of innocence in every moment prior to a conviction. We have the right against self-incrimination—we don't have to testify at trial and the fact that we don't testify cannot be used against us as evidence of guilt. We have the right to an attorney, the right to trial by jury and the right against Double Jeopardy—not being tried twice for the same alleged offense, and the right to confront witnesses against us through cross-examination.

The State also has the entire burden of proof. An accused person doesn't have to prove anything at trial. The State's burden of proof is the heavy legal burden of "proof beyond a reasonable doubt." The State also may not convict someone based upon an illegal search or seizure. Generally, if the police don't have a warrant signed by a neutral judge—that is based upon probable cause to believe the individual has committed a crime, allowing them to be in a place to discover the alleged criminal activity, that evidence can't be used in court.

The State also has a continuing legal and ethical obligation to turn over to me all exculpatory evidence (i.e. evidence which proves my client is not guilty) that never goes away.

Why did the Framers of our Constitution feel so strongly that it was necessary to anchor these guarantees in our Constitution? Because they had suffered the very abuses they were now protecting against at the hands of King George and the British government, which eventually led to the Revolutionary War. Thomas Jefferson lists many of these abuses in the Declaration of Independence. So, in setting up our new government the Framers made very certain that such abuses could no longer be perpetrated.

So, when I defend someone, I present the very best legal arguments that may be available to my client. If I'm unsuccessful it means that a thoroughly vetted jury of 12 people have unanimously decided guilt. However, if I persuade even one juror that the State has not carried its burden of proving that my client is guilty, the result is a hung jury, and the state has to start over, and my client remains presumed innocent.

When the trial is finished and a jury returns a unanimous verdict of guilty, I know I have done my job, and the jury did its job. The system worked.

However, even when I lose, it is still critical that the trial was held and that my client received a zealous defense through my challenging the State's evidence and cross-examining the State's witnesses. I have tested the obligation of the police to remain thorough and conscientious as they do their critically important jobs—like correctly providing Miranda warnings and preserving evidence with a verifiable chain of custody; requiring the DNA expert to be certain about their findings and requiring that the doctor who performed the autopsy be absolutely certain about their conclusion regarding the cause of death. I have forced the ballistics expert to be certain that this very bullet matched this very gun and have required that any lay witnesses be very certain about what they are testifying to against my client on the witness stand.

That is why I have a clear conscience and a sense of peace. I've done my job and protected all of our constitutional rights and have ensured that our criminal justice and judicial systems have worked as our Founders intended..

March is brain injury awareness month

For over thirty years the Brain Injury Association of America (BIAA) has led the nation in observing Brain Injury Awareness Month by conducting public awareness campaign in March of each year.

The theme for the campaign is Change Your Mind providing an awareness platform for educating the general public about the incidence of brain injury and the needs of people with brain injuries and their families and Individuals

I shall never forget when I first became aware of just how important it is that I share my story of my mother's tragic accident, when she lapsed into a coma at the age of two, while her parents were living in an underground dugout in Woods County, Oklahoma where their family was in the Land Rush of Oklahoma in 1908.

I was over-awed, after sharing my mother's story, at a Christian writer's conference in 2010. A young woman approached me and told me how grateful she was that I had told my story that day because her daughter had been in an automobile accident that caused her to be disabled for life yet she was soon to become a new mother.

A year later I saw her again and she said that somehow it was working out with their family and the new grand baby.

It helps knowing someone else has experienced what you are going through.

Not long after that experience I was sitting in a doctor's waiting room next to a young woman. Being the perpetual story teller that I am, I began sharing my story about my mother's brain trauma.

I noticed she became speechless while I told my story.

After I finished she said "there's a reason you just told me that story. I am helping my sister-in-law, who was brain damaged in an auto accident to raise her teenage daughter."

She confirmed how important sharing my mother's story really is. It took me a long time to find out what happened to my child-like mother but one thing I will always know she loved me so much and wanted to do better but didn't know how. I shall never forget her blinding tears when we went to an orphanage.

I would probably not be here today had it not been for my parent's neighbors matching them up after my maternal grandfather died leaving my thirty-nine year old mother with no family support system. My paternal grandmother also had just passed away leaving my already ill father with no one to care so it was an easy match.

But anyway my sister, Alice, and I came into this world in a most unusual setting and we both vividly remember the taunts and stares of other children because of our funny clothes and everything that goes with being poor.

Children can be cruel. I don't think anyone knew what had happened to mother but the school yard bullying hurt us both to the core.

Being a child is hard enough but standing out in a crowd hurts.

What I am here to say is that what happens to someone else can just as easily happen to you. To think not is to be naive.

I recall one summer in the early 80's when three young people in this area had accidents that caused them to lapse into a coma resulting in permanent brain damage.

Sometimes just hearing someone else's story gives us the courage to go on. We should not be so afraid to reach out, to share where we came from.

After all "we are all angels flying with only one wing and we can only fly embracing each other."

Whatever happens to us can be a tool we can use to lift others to their feet, out of depression and lead us to a brighter day.

Where will my story lead I do not know but one thing I know is that Jesus is the same yesterday, today and forever and He always gets me to the right place at the right time.

A Look Behind the Minden Press-Herald Website Woes

You might be wondering, "What's going on with the Minden Press-Herald website?" It's a fair question, given the recent challenges we've encountered. Let me fill you in on the backstory.

Shortly after Christmas, we convened a meeting to strategize the future of our digital presence: what's working, where we need to improve, and how we can better serve our community online. While our website has long been the go-to source for local news, we recognized the need to modernize and meet the evolving expectations of our readers.

Around the same time, we found ourselves grappling with a barrage of malicious bot traffic inundating our website, along with others in our company, and overloading our servers. Every

DAVID SPECHT

Despite enlisting the help of our service provider's experts, the issue persisted, leaving us frustrated and perplexed. Turning to a third-party solution seemed promising, but alas, their attempted fix only exacerbated the issue, resulting in a complete website outage. Back to square one it was, as we grappled with the reality that a sluggish website was better than none at all.

Enter Cloudflare, our latest third-party partner, who proposed rerouting our website traffic to fend off the bots. While this strategy showed some promise, it wasn't a foolproof solution. Thus, the implementation of a "human verification" step upon website access became our current workaround. Though effective in combating bot traffic, it hasn't come without its share of drawbacks, such as images and link previews failing to reach our social media posts or email newsletters.

Our hope is to streamline this process in the near future, utilizing the verification step only when absolutely necessary. Moving forward, we're committed to enhancing our website with upgrades and more content than ever before. One notable addition is our news and sports submission forms, designed to facilitate easy contributions from our readers. In these challenging times, especially since the Covid pandemic, we recognize the importance of community engagement and pledge to handle your submissions with care and urgency.

While our commitment to providing a printed product remains steadfast, we acknowledge that our digital footprint is equally vital. Rest assured, we're more than just a newspaper – we're a multi-media platform dedicated to serving Minden and beyond. I want to extend my heartfelt gratitude to you, our readers, for your patience and understanding as we navigate these challenges. Though we're not out of the woods yet, we're making significant strides, and your unwavering support means the world to us.

Doyline downs Castor in first round

RUSSELL HEDGES
Minden Press-Herald

The first two games this season between District 1-B foes Doyline and Castor had plenty of excitement and suspense.

Last Friday's non-select Division V first-round playoff game between the Panthers and Tigers was short on both.

Doyline, the No. 5 seed, started and finished strong in a 65-44 victory over No. 28 Castor at Doyline.

The Panthers (24-3) were scheduled to host No. 12 Hicks (21-15) in the second round next week. The Pirates defeated No. 21 Phoenix 68-66 in the first round.

Castor closed its season 13-18.

The Panthers and Tigers split their regular-season games. Castor won 71-63 at Castor. Doyline rallied for a 56-55 victory at Doyline.

This time, the Panthers jumped on the Tigers early, rolling to a 19-5 lead after the first quarter.

Castor played better in the second quarter, but Doyline was still ahead by 10 at the half.

The Tigers got within eight, 47-39, after three quarters. But the Panthers made sure there would be no suspense in the fourth, limiting the Tigers to six points.

Four Doyline players scored in double figures. Jay Patterson had 17, Cayden Mingo 16, Damarian McLendon 14 and Keidric Clark 10.

Mingo hit four 3-pointers, one in each quarter. McLendon was 7-of-8 from the free throw line. He made all four attempts in the fourth quarter.

Dawson Wood led Castor with 17 points.

OUTDOORS

It was an average year for trophy bucks

GLYNN HARRIS

As an outdoor writer/broadcaster, there are several things on my work schedule. For instance, every week I write an outdoor column appearing in seven newspapers around north Louisiana. In addition, I produce and record four weekly radio programs. When opportunities are presented, I write an occasional article for magazines.

One thing that has been a regular assignment for the past 10 years or so is to contact, interview and write articles for Louisiana Sportsman magazine and web site about trophy bucks taken in Louisiana. I enjoy everything I do for outdoors media but especially rewarding is getting to do articles on these big bucks that come to my attention either by my being contacted by successful hunters or by browsing social media to find photos hunters post when they are successful in downing a trophy.

Granted, I don't get them all as some hunters prefer to keep their success under wraps as they have no interest in sharing details preferring to keep details and locations secret. I totally accept that. If I had a secret honey hole where I find my trophies, I might be reluctant to share too many details. Even so, I average getting to write articles on at least twenty-five big bucks each season. The ones I do write about give me an idea of what type of bucks on average are taken each season.

From my contacts for the season just ended, my conclusion is that the number and quality of bucks this year was average or maybe slightly below average. Drought conditions this past summer affecting browse plants no doubt contributed to this season's somewhat lower results.

In past years, my articles have covered an occasional buck weighing in excess of 300 pounds and a few have resulted in impressive scores of 270 inches or better. I did articles on 30 trophy bucks this past season with buck with the heaviest body weighing just over 230 pounds. The highest scoring buck I located measured 190 inches of antler mass.

COURTESY PHOTO
One buck featured in LA Sportsman was a 155-nch, 12-point buck taken in Sabine Parish by Casey Carrington.

Looking over the statistics of bucks taken last season covered in articles I wrote were impressive, but not quite as eye-catching as some in seasons past.

The highest number of bucks I found were taken in Union Parish with five while Beauregard Parish produced four, indicating that you are likely to find a trophy really from one end of the state to the other. Bucks were taken in twenty-two parishes from north to central to the delta region to southwest Louisiana.

How about antler measurements? The thirty bucks in my articles averaged just over 156 inches of mass while the average number of antler points were 10.26. How about body weights? This came out to 192.6 pounds per buck.

During the month of October, nine bucks were reported, November had the highest number with 15 while December produces six.

Four bucks were taken by traditional archery equipment, two with crossbows and the majority, 24, fell to high powered rifles.

A number of trophies were taken by happenstance. They just showed up. Many of the more successful hunters, however, work all year to prepare food plots, keep minerals available, especially during spring and summer when new antlers and muscle mass are growing.

I'm already looking forward to deer season 2024-25 when we get to do it all over again. Maybe this will be the season with weather conditions improved and I'll get a call from you or find your photo of your buck on social media. Be assured, if this happens, I'll be in touch.

DAYLIGHT SAVINGS TIME BEGINS MARCH 10

We will wrestle with this issue again next week! Why are we still observing this 'war strategy for saving the consumption of energy?' Daylight Savings Time (DST) was first implemented in Germany in 1916 during World War I. Other European countries followed soon, and the United States followed suite in 1918. It was first implemented as the Standard Time Act of 1918 as a wartime measure for 7 months during World War I in the interest of adding more daylight hours to conserve energy resources. (Woodrow Wilson was President). Year-round DST was implemented again during World War I, when FDR was President.

A Congressional Report on the energy impact of extending DST by 4 weeks, revealed the time change saved about 0.03% of the country's total electrical use and about 1/2 of 1%

Bill Crider

% of total energy consumption. Is it really worth it all? The question continues to float through our discussions in the spring and fall, with no concrete action being taken to settle the issue.

So while we discuss and fuss about this issue, consider these measures to better use our time this year: *

- * Have a clear picture of what you want to accomplish each day
- * List tasks and appointments on your calendar; review it daily
- * Have a few clear goals for each activity and projects you're involved in
- * Feel free not to read everything that crosses your desk
- * Prioritize your tasks in order and stick to top-priority items

* Work on highly involved tasks when you feel the most alert

* Stop working when you feel fatigued

* Break the large projects down into manageable pieces to finish one at a time

* Survey your long-term goals regularly

* Commit your work unto the Lord and seek His directions in every way

No matter how we 'cut the day' we still have 24 hours to get our work, hobbies, household, family-time and leisure chores squeezed in. Most important is to 'place our time in the hands of the Lord, praying to make the best decisions on time management.' Use Proverbs 3: 5-6 as a starter for spiritual guidance. (Add other Scriptures that will help you order your time and balance your work.)

Significant Places: New Jerusalem

"Then I saw a new heaven and a new earth . . . And I saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God," Revelation 21:1-2 NASB

Max Hutto

In the last two chapters of Revelation, John writes of the glory of eternity in Heaven. In seemingly inadequate words he attempts to describe the beauty, the splendor, and the grandeur of the Holy City, the New Jerusalem. This marvelous place is being prepared by the Lord as an inheritance for all whose names are written in the book of life, for all who, by the grace of God, have trusted in Jesus as their Savior. In this New Jerusalem, Heaven, believers will spend eternity in the presence of the Lord.

Lord Jesus, I am in awe of this place You are preparing for me and all believers. I long for the day when Your glory is revealed, and I will spend eternity with You.

My Brother's Keeper?

Do you have friends and family members that have stepped away from God? Have you made an effort to show them the love and compassion of Christ? I ask these questions not to survey but to evoke serious thought. God has charged us not to be lazy and apathetic towards our brothers and sisters but to be proactive in their salvation. Abram (Abraham) figured this concept out without having to be told by anyone. A situation arose in which Lot and his family were taken captive. Rather than leaving Lot and his family to fend for themselves, Abram springs into action. Genesis 14:14-16 KJV "And when Abram heard that his brother was taken captive, he armed his trained servants, born in his own house, three hundred and eighteen, and pursued them unto Dan. And he divided himself against them, he and his servants, by night, and smote them, and pursued them unto Hobah, which is on the left hand of Damascus. And he brought back all the goods, and also brought back his brother Lot, and his goods, and the women also, and the people." Abrams' example shows us that no matter how people treat us, mercy, compassion, and love are always the solution. Abram was truly his brother's keeper.
